

SHOT IN THE RIGHT THIGH.

The Serious Outcome of the Baseball Matter.

ARTHUR WHITE ACCUSED OF THE ACT.

White, Together With Willie Wilder, Takes the Young Pitcher to Waikiki, and There He is Shot and Then Convinced—White Arrested Yesterday.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Arthur White, one of the owners of the Arlington Billiard Parlors on Hotel street, was arrested yesterday morning by Captain Langley, and charged with an assault with a deadly weapon. He is accused by George Wood, the pitcher who sold last Saturday's baseball game, with having shot him in the right thigh. The boy is not seriously hurt, though the wound is a painful one.

The affair grew out of the selling of the game. Last Saturday evening, when everyone was convinced that the young negro had sold out, he was asked who had bought him, and said that White had done it. He reiterated this statement several times. Saturday night he was taken to the Arlington and in the presence of several witnesses, who had promised that he should not be hurt, he again said that White had paid him $10 to throw the game. White denied it, and would have whipped him then had he not been restrained, but he declared afterward that he would thrash the boy. Wood, however, stuck to his statement that White was the man who bought him, although he several times contradicted himself, stating that some of the Kamehameha boys were the ones who gave him the $10. The League took the matter in hand, but has made no discoveries, and yesterday exonerated both White and the Kamehameha nine, there not being evidence enough to convict either.

Thursday evening, White and Willie Wilder got a buggy and drove to where Wood lives on Emma street. White had a cowhide with him, and was prepared to whip the boy. The latter was not at home, however. As the two were driving down Emma street they met Wood going home. They called to him, and White told him to get into the buggy. Wood refused to do so, and White jumped from the vehicle, and, drawing a pistol, told the darkey that he would shoot him if he didn't get in. Wood thought discretion the better part of valor, and got in the buggy, sitting between White and Wilder.

The trio then drove out to Waikiki, taking the Moiliili road. They drove through the Park, at last coming to the Lemon cottage, at the end of the car line. Here Wilder says he got out of the buggy, opened the gate and went to the back of the house in order to open the door. When Wilder had gone, Wood made a jump from the buggy and started to run. He says White called to him to stop, but he didn't heed him. Then, he says, White fired his pistol, the ball taking effect in Wood's right thigh. The boy fell to the ground, and White went up to him and asked him if he was shot.

Up to this point, the stories of both sides agree. But here they begin to diverge. Wood says that he told White he was shot. White is quoted as saying that Wood said he was not shot, but that as soon as he was spoken to he got up from the ground. White ordered him into the house, where Wilder was sitting, and ordered him to tell who bought the game. Wood says he flourished his pistol and a rawhide, and that, soon after the party had entered the house, White began to beat him. The boy's back is badly scarred where he was struck with the whip, and in some parts is absolutely raw. When White had finished whipping Wood the boy says he gave him a half a dollar and sent him home on the car.

White claims that when he asked Wood whether he was shot, the boy said no. He walked into the house without limping, and both Wilder and White claim they had no idea that he had been hit. White says he fired the pistol to scare the boy into stopping.

Wilder said yesterday afternoon that Wood, when asked again who had bought him, named Kanea, who lives at Ewa.

Wood came home on the last car. He met a Portuguese boy whom he knew, and who helped him home. When he arrived at the gate the boy helped him take his shoe off, and he went into the house and to bed. The house he lives in is owned by David Naholewa, a policeman, and Wood takes care of the place. Mrs. Naholewa called Wood yesterday morning early to get up and light the fire. The boy did so, and she noticed that he was limping, but said nothing about it. After the breakfast she again called Wood, telling him to come and wash the dishes. When he came she asked him how he had hurt himself and he told her the story. She at once told her husband, and he persuaded Wood to go to the station house. The boy claimed that the reason that he did not tell the police on Thursday night was because he was afraid that White would kill him. It was for this reason that nothing was known of the affair until yesterday morning.

When he went to the police station and told his story, a warrant was at once issued for White's arrest. Captain Langley made the arrest as White was coming in from Waikiki. White seemed surprised when told that Wood had been hit. He was released on $1000 bonds being furnished by E. Hopkins, White's partner.

The statement made by Wood at the station, yesterday morning, was as follows. Part of it was dictated and part of it was written by himself:

I was shot by Arthur White last night. The ball entered the front side of my hip and did not come out. It happened this way: I had been out following the hares and hounds and was going back to my home on Emma street, and when I got to the corner of Beretania and Emma street I met Arthur White and Willie Wilder coming down Emma street in a buggy. Wilder said to me: "Wood, come and get into the buggy; White wants to talk to you." I said I didn't want to get in. White then jumped from the buggy and put his hand in his back pocket and took out a revolver, saying that if I did not get in the buggy he would blow my brains out. I got into the buggy and sat between the two. We drove out Beretania street to Kamoiiliili. While driving out, White said: "Wood, you had better tell the truth now," and I said I would. We drove as far as Makee Island, and Wilder said to White something like "Now, we've got him sure," and White said "Yes." They did not talk to me any more. When we got to Waikiki, White looked in the house at the end of the car track and saw the lamp was lit. He told Wilder to open the gate and he drove into the yard. Wilder got out to tie the horse, and I and White were left in the buggy. White turned away for a moment and I jumped out and ran. He shot me while I was running. I fell down, and White came up to me and asked me if I was hit. I told him yes, and he took me by the arm and told me to get up and go into the house. When I got there, White told me to sit down, and said he had good mind to shoot me like a dog. He then told me that if I did not tell the truth he would cowhide me. I got frightened and told him that he did not buy me, but that I was so frightened that I had said so. He was walking around the room with his revolver and a cowhide in his hands. He began to whip me. After he had whipped me he said he was sorry for whipping me, and gave me half a dollar to go home on the last car. Wilder was in the room all the time. The driver of the car I came home on was named Welch. He knows me, and asked me where I was going. I said I was going home. On the car I met a Portuguese boy whom I knew. I told him what was the matter. He helped me home. I had to lean on him with my arm around his neck. When I got right to the gate, I told him to take my right shoe off.

Wood broke off rather abruptly in his statement, owing to the fact that he was becoming confused. He was taken to the hospital, and the ball abstracted.

White absolutely refused to talk of the affair. Willie Wilder, however, corroborated the statement made by Wood, except the part which claims that he said "Now we have got him where we want him." He says nothing of the kind was said by either himself or White. He also says that he had no knowledge whatever of any shooting, and did not know until yesterday that the boy was shot. He says White did not whip him hard, but gave him only a few light strokes with the cowhide.

COURT IN HAMAKUA.

The Calendar of Cases Tried This Term.

HAMAKUA, (Hawaii), July 17.—Honaka presents quite a lively appearance at the present time, so that the dusty little village is not only swelling into great importance but is quite alive with people who have come from all parts of the island. Conspicuous among this number may be seen the ponderous and venerable form of our respected Judge Austin; also the jovial countenance of Gardner K. Wilder, the Deputy Attorney-General; the sad but still resolute features of the once redoubtable and famous V. V. Ashford, besides quite a number of lesser legal lights and people of more or less importance.

The meaning of this unusual stir, of course, was the meeting of the Fourth District Court at the courthouse at Honakaa, July 11th.

Now, if it were not for the fact that an appropriation was made for a new courthouse, I should like to say a word in regard to the superior accommodations of the present one, but as it is I will be brief and say I have not but the people who attend it are thankful they are still alive after passing through such an ordeal. There were, it is said, fifteen cases on the docket, but none of them were of a very serious nature excepting a Portuguese criminal assault case to which the prisoner pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment at hard labor. There were several liquor cases, but it is rather hard to get a conviction from the fact that the average jurymen generally has some sympathy for these people, and besides they think the Government is to blame for not granting them a beer license. Among the other more serious cases was one for receiving stolen goods. The evidence went to prove that there was something "in it," but the fellow got off. There was also another assault case, but the evidence that went to prove it was "too thin." There was also a perjury case in second degree which was proved, and the defendant got two-and-a-half years to ponder over his maiden attempt at false swearing. Of the other cases, some were postponed until next time and carried over for some reason or another.

The closing exercises of the Public School in Paauilo took place last week, to the satisfaction of everyone and to the astonishment of not a few. I may say, the progress made in learning in the schools of this district is something to be proud of, and a credit to the teachers and scholars, and, in fact, to everybody concerned in the management of our public schools.

The weather is still dry and dusty, with occasional showers, but there has been no rain to speak of since the 8th instant.

The following is the full calendar of cases of the July term of the Fourth District Court:
